

DOCTOR of NURSING PRACTICE in EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP

(Offered Entirely Online)

HUMANIZING HEALTH SERVICES LEADERSHIP FOR TODAY & TOMORROW

The Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) in Executive Leadership, offered by Edgewood University, is in indirect care and emphasizes the highest level of instruction to prepare experts for advanced nursing leadership roles. Our graduates will bring the best practices to health services and care systems management, evidence-based care, and translational research methods. Further preparation in public health and health policy, epidemiology, healthcare finance, informatics, and quality management provide depth and breadth to a curriculum that culminates with a capstone project and a customized residency experience.

- Complete your post-master's degree in just two years
- Degree can be done part-time or full-time
- Learn online and practice in-person
- Enroll each fall and spring

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

- Graduated with a baccalaureate degree from a nursing program accredited by a national nursing accreditation body and received at least a 3.3 GPA on a 4.0 scale from an accredited master's degree program*
- Completed a graduate statistics course within three years of the program's start date¹ (footnote on back)
- Hold a current registered nursing license in the United States
- Practiced for a minimum of one year as a Registered Nurse in the United States (preferred)
- BSN-prepared candidates may be considered for the DNP program by first successfully completing the MSN degree

*BSN-prepared candidates with a master's degree in a discipline other than nursing may also be considered for admission. If a candidate's master's degree is not an MSN, his/her program of study will be evaluated for coursework that prepares him/her for DNP study. Non-MSN candidates may be asked to submit a portfolio of professional practice that highlights their knowledge, skills, and application of the MSN Essentials (i.e., research, health care policy, ethics, role development, foundations of nursing, human diversity and social issues, and health promotion). These students are often required to enroll in additional coursework prior to beginning the DNP program.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Flexible course scheduling
- Tailored residency and capstone experience to align with career goals
- Prepared for a career in:
 - Executive Nursing Leadership
 - Public Health & Health Policy
 - Epidemiology
 - Healthcare Finance
 - Informatics
 - Quality Management
- Prepared to sit for several national specialty certificates

"Edgewood University's DNP program allowed me to elevate my current skill set and immediately integrate advanced leadership principles into my daily practice. The curriculum empowered me to influence patient outcomes, quality improvement, and return on investment through evidence-based decision making. The faculty's one-on-one support, especially during the capstone, created a collaborative experience that translated learning into real impact."
